RICK SANTORUM

Republican presidential candidate and Internet sensation Rick Santorum recently described an SNL skit depicting him scared and uncomfortable in a San Francisco gay bar as "bullying", adding that "The left, unfortunately, participates in bullying more than the right does. They say that they're tolerant, and they're anything but tolerant of people who disagree with them and support traditional values." This is, of course, entirely true. Here are some other ways that would be fun to bully Rick Santorum:

-Steal his lunch money

-Break into his house and replace all of his Tivoed episodes of Deadliest Warrior with episodes of Will & Grace

-Turn his kids gay (in addition to being right about the liberal propensity for bullying, Santorum is also right that it is totally possible to do that)

-Attend GOP debates, make loud fart noises every time Santorum speaks

-Send him a onetime limited offer for ten CDs for the price of one (Rick Santorum is not comfortable using iTunes), but when he looks into it have the only CDs available be Your Little Secret by Melissa Etheridge and Almas del Silencio by Ricky Martin

-Show him the polls that have him trailing even Newt Gingrich

SB INFO

-Students are advised that even though they may have treated fall break as a vacation, other students didn't and instead spent the week doing extra reading relating to the classes they are in and, as such, you are going to seem stupid in class on Monday.

-Tired of your pet? CAVE is now accepting donations.

-The sociology department is hosting a lecture this Wednesday by University of Oregon sociology professor Mark Hamlin. His lecture is titled "Don't go to sociology grad school or you will end up as boring as I am." Refreshments will be served.

-The Reed Sesame Street Club would like to remind you that z is for zebra.

-SOLAR reopens today, students are advised to weigh their desire for no class on Fridays against their desire to have a job when they graduate and pick their courses wisely.

-In light of the new tradition of premature celebrations beginning with Oktoberfest in September, there will be a Thanksgiving potluck in the SU next weekend, followed immediately by an Easter Egg hunt in front of Commons.
